

July 29, 2004

Federal Communications Commission

Subject: Comment regarding MB Docket No. 04-261

The last thing this country needs is more restrictions on our constitutional rights. Your attempt to further regulate content on broadcast media is repulsive to people who appreciate freedom of speech and freedom of expression.

You claim that only a small percentage of households that have the V-chip technology, make use of it. Does this not tell you that they do not care? That things are fine as they are.

Those who are concerned, express their concern by using the V-chip to regulate the viewing habits of children. No more is required. More bureaucratic regulation will not make this a better country. It will only make this country less free.

Debra Blatnik
6312 US Hwy 301 N. #336
Ellenton, FL 34222